New figures show worsening deficit

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington's deficit for the current FY 1992 budget has grown from $614,000 to a projected $950,000, a figure Town Manager Michael Caira calls "absolutely devastating." The figure had town officials scrambling over the weekend to try to lessen the impact and bring it down to a manageable number. With the passage of the salary deferral plan Tuesday by Wilmington selectmen, that figure is now reduced to $416,869. The school department will bear $200,000 of that burden while the town will carry the rest. The remainder of the $950,000 will be paid out of next year's budget unless a bill to defer that money until 1997 is approved by legislators.

Caira blamed the difference between his original deficit projection and the latest figure on the failure of the state to raise the minimum excise tax and pass the tax overlay exemption as well as on less revenues.

"The revenues have not come in to the extent we had hoped. There's no way we are going to meet any criteria of the Department of Revenue in order to set a tax rate," said the town manager adding, "I think we're pretty much between a rock and a hard place in the whole process."

The impact on Wilmington is more difficult now that the town is four months into the fiscal year, Caira explained. He said there's little doubt employees will be laid off though the town side will be kept to a minimum thanks to Caira's practice of not hiring people to fill vacancies, except where "absolutely critical." Without the deferral, upwards of 25 to 30 employees stand to lose their jobs, said Caira. He went on to say the worst impact will be felt by the school department which has few options with most of the school budget in salaries.

Caira told this paper the public doesn't realize how few dollars will be saved with the layoff of just one employee. For instance, if a worker earning $30,000 who has four family members is laid off in November, the actual savings to the town would only be about $10,000. Caira explained that was because $10,000 has already been paid out in four months and the rest would go towards accrued vacation and personal time and unemployment costs.

Return from outer space

Students at the Shawsheen School didn't have to wait for a clear night to view the stars. Dr. David Wood of Science for Kids set up a portable planetarium in the school gym on Tuesday, and presented a program on the wonders of the universe. Students are shown emerging from the planetarium, a vinyl dome supported by air pressure. Holding the opening are PAC President Bonny Smith and teacher Florine Bakke.

Selectmen OK deferral

by Arlene Surprenant
The deferral issue came down to the wire Tuesday night as Wilmington selectmen voted three-to-two to adopt the teachers' salary deferral plan.

Selectmen on both sides of the issue argued passionately before finally voting to go along with Town Manager Michael Caira's recommendation to defer $532,638 in teachers' salaries to next year. While they were divided on the deferral plan, selectmen almost to a man chastised the school committee for negotiating 18 percent pay increases in the new teacher's contract and going with a three year package instead of a one year agreement.

"A three-year contract is outrageous; I'm appalled at that," said Chairman Dan Ballou. Ballou was the most outspoken against the deferral plan. He argued that it wasn't "prudent" to go along with the plan, largely because there would be no money to fund the debt in the future.

"Be honest and be truthful and say the money isn't there. It's not there for the schools. It's not there for the towns," said Ballou adding he'd rather see "piecemeal" layoffs this year than massive layoffs in the next few years.

"If we cut now we're causing havoc. If we cut later we may have compounded a problem," said fellow selectman Mark Haldane in support of the salary deferral. He said his vote in favor was really a vote for town employees who took no salary increase this year so they could have job security and yet, with no deferral, they could be laid off. The town manager had told selectmen approximately 30 town workers would be laid off immediately without the adoption of the plan. Haldane agreed with Caira that it would be more devastating to make cuts a third of the way through the fiscal year than at the beginning.

"I am concerned with the taxpayers and the people in the town of Wilmington," said Chester Bruce as he urged his board to "bite the bullet" and make the necessary cuts now rather than postpone action and hope a proposed bill to delay deferral payments until 1997 goes through. Without that legislation, Wilmington will have to pay back the funds deferred out of next year's budget which, it is predicted, will be at least one million dollars short.

Both Bob Doucette and Bob Cain seemed torn by their decision but said they supported the town manager so the town could stave off immediate fiscal problems. Doucette and Cain were also critical of any raises at this time.

"We can't pay our bills now. Where are we going to find another million dollars just for raises?" asked Doucette, referring to potential increases for both school and town employees in 1993 alone.

After debating the issue for one and a half hours, Haldane, Cain, and Doucette voted in favor of the recommendation while Ballou and Bruce were opposed.

Flynn arrested after two-month search

After a two-month search, police have arrested alleged crime kingpin Charles "Chuck" Flynn on gambling charges.

Flynn was arrested in Somerville at a donut shop about 2 p.m. on Tuesday. A team of state police, Lowell and Somerville police made the arrest.

Arraigned in Middlesex Superior Court in Cambridge, he was ordered held without bail.

A native of Wilmington, he had been on parole and living in Rochester, New Hampshire. On August 15, he was named in grand jury indictments for running a gambling operation in the greater Lowell area. The indictments named several men, including Flynn's nephew, Gerard O'Keefe of 131 Federal St., Wilmington.

The others were all picked up or summonsed, but Flynn had eluded police. There was no indication where Flynn had been since August.

He had been paroled after serving 11 years of a life sentence for a 1975 robbery of the Bonded Vault Co. in Providence, R.I. The loot from that robbery, said to be in the range of $3-4 million, was never recovered.

A co-defendant in the Bonded Vault case, John F. Ouimette, recently had his conviction overturned on appeal. Based on that, it is expected that Flynn's attorney will fight extradition to Rhode Island, where Flynn had been paroled.

Drawing for affordable housing units Feb. 1

by Arlene Surprenant

The second lottery for the Shawsheen Commons affordable housing development off Hopkins Street has been set for Saturday, February 1.

At their meeting Thursday night, members of the Wilmington Housing Partnership learned that 73 people have already submitted applications for 14 available units in phase two and more applications are expected once the advertising and fair marketing process has begun.

According to Planning Director Lynn Duncan, officials from the Boston Five Bank will be handling the lottery. Though the lottery had originally been planned for this fall, developer Jay Tighe had asked the board to push back the date because of reported construction and occupancy delays.

WHP members set January 15 as the application deadline. Those persons who have already submitted applications will have to reapply using the Boston Five's application. The affordable units will be constructed through the winter and spring and be ready for occupancy by next June. Ray Forest said the board should remind Tighe that the low income units should be scattered in separate buildings. Apparently this wasn't done in phase one. All applications will have to go through a prequalifying process before the lottery begins. Anyone whose name was not drawn in the first lottery is eligible to submit another application.

Duncan informed the board 32 of the 44 total units in phase one have already been sold. In order to move ahead to phase two, proponents would have to have 75 percent of all units under agreement.

School board votes for deferral

by Arlene Surprenant

School committeemen reversed their vote on the state's salary deferral plan in a special meeting Monday night upon learning that Wilmington's current deficit had grown to $949,505. At their regular meeting on Wednesday, a majority voted against the plan. Those voting against were Dr. Shirley Callan, Peg Kane, Andrea Paglia, and Bob Peterson. The special meeting was called at the request of Peterson, who wished to change his vote.

At Monday's meeting Peterson said he was changing his vote because he felt he wasn't given the "proper information" on the deferral. The men on the board supported the deferral because they agreed with Chairman Aldo Cairra that the shortfall would "decimate" the school system.

Dr. Callan and the other two women stood by their original vote.

"It's just a way of putting off the inevitable. We're still going to owe money," she said.

If proposed legislation is approved, towns and cities which choose to defer teachers' salaries to the following year would have until 1997 before they have to start paying back their debt.

In anticipation of an affirmative deferral vote by Wilmington selectmen Tuesday, the board also voted a bottom line cut of $200,000 in the current budget. This is the amount the town manager said would be picked up by the schools if the deferral plan is okayed. Though the three women voted against the cut because of uncertainty over where the reductions would be made and a desire to wait and see what selectmen would do, the men gave Supt. William Fay the authority to make the necessary cuts.

Fay recommended the cuts be made by not rehiring non-tenured teachers, by renegotiating all current contracts to see if other units would be willing to give up their seven percent raise, by freezing non-salary accounts, and by spending only essential funds. As a contingency, Business Manager Peter DeRoeve suggested cuts in other areas like unemployment, special education, and transportation for special needs youngsters. Though it would be difficult, DeRoeve told committee members he felt he could come up with $200,000 without affecting personnel.

John DeMarco and Dr. Callan said they hoped other school units would follow the lead of the teachers' union and be willing to forego this year's raise. Cairra said that may not be necessary. He added that about a month ago members of one unit had voted not to give up their raise this year.

HOW TO PUT MORE IN YOUR 401(k)

Two-income families often live on one salary and try to save out of the other. But it may be worthwhile to save out of both, where a 401(k) or other tax-advantaged savings plan is available.

In many cases, a company will match a portion of the employee's contribution, up to a certain limit. Contributions over that, up to the legal limit, might be deductible but would not be matched. Obviously, it's more advantageous to make contributions to both plans - contributions that will be matched - than to add unmatched funds to one account and lose the other employer's benefit.

Some companies also limit the amount that higher paid employees may contribute in order to keep their 401(k) plan from becoming top heavy. In that case, it is particularly important to contribute the maximum allowable to both plans. Yet another consideration is the possibility of divorce. If both partners have worked for the family's well being, then both should own retirement plans in their own name.

Coup fails; Caira retains school committee chair

by Arlene Surprenant
The Chairman of the Wilmington School Committee barely retained his seat last week following a four to three vote expressing confidence in his ability to lead the board.

Committeeman Andrea Paglia challenged Chairman Aldo Caira at the end of last Wednesday's heated discussion on the teachers contract and called for a vote of confidence in the chair. Paglia and two other members, Peg Kane and Dr. Shirley Callan, claimed the chairman had overstepped his role in a number of ways in recent months.

"All of us had gone to Aldo privately; it's not like this came out of nowhere," said Callan after the meeting. She told this paper it was noone's intention to air the matter publicly at that time.

During the meeting, Paglia charged that Caira had changed the agenda several times on his own authority without notifying the board. She alleged that he had also acted on his own volition in delaying arbitration on the recent teacher layoffs without the committee's knowledge. Caira denied the allegation saying the arbitration was postponed by the Massachusetts Teachers Association on behalf of the Wilmington union.

Kane pointed out a majority vote of the school committee is necessary to act on anything.

Kane also charged that the chairman took it upon himself to send out contract notices to school employees without informing the board. Caira replied sending out notices in the manner it was done was standard operating procedure.

"They all went out without the authorization of the school committee because we didn't even know about it," said Kane.

According to Dr. Callan, seven notices were sent out from School Attorney Alan Altman notifying each of the bargaining units that their current contracts either would be modified or terminated when the contract period was up. As a matter of course, such notice has to be given within a certain period of the contract's expiration date. The three women on the committee were especially angered by a notice sent to Business Manager Peter DeRoeve which stated that the board desired not to renew his contract. Dr. Callan said it was unclear to her whether the rest of the board took a vote on the notices at the September 18 executive session. The women were not present at that meeting. If a vote were taken to send out the notices, she questioned why there was no mention of it in the minutes. The women also questioned why the superintendent never received his contract notice. Caira said since the board never acted on the superintendent's contract, no memo was sent out despite the fact that his contract expires before DeRoeve's.

In his defense, Caira said anything that was done was done on behalf of the board. Several indignant members vocally supported Caira and chastised recent actions by Paglia, Kane and Dr. Callan.

"He's probably been the best chairman I've sat with," noted Phil Fenton. He pointed out, because of division on the board, discussions too often get bogged down in "personalities."

"We spend more time on garbage. We're (supposed to be) here for the kids," he said.

Fenton targeted the three women for purposely absenting themselves from the September 18 executive session.

"I'm getting tired of people not showing up at executive session. If you want to know what's going on, show up," he said.

Bob Peterson, too lashed out at the female members.

"Never in my seven years on this committee have I seen a certain group of people personalize an issue of this importance," said Peterson in reference to the new teachers' contract.

"The chair is just exercising the authority he has. I think he's done an admirable job," summed up John DeMarco.

Dr. Callan disagreed. She said, as she saw it, the chairman's role is to act as a traffic cop and just preside over meetings. While Dr. Callan went along with Paglia and Kane in casting a no confidence vote in Caira, the rest of the board expressed confidence in Caira's ability to head the committee.

Housing authority to seek town-owned land

by Arlene Surprenant
The Wilmington Housing Partnership is planning to go to town meeting to seek approval to use several parcels of town land for affordable housing. Besides 10 acres by the Wildwood School, the Partnership is looking to build single or attached units on one or two scattered sites near Aldrich Road. Saying they wanted to move the process along, WHP members voted unanimously last week to proceed with several sites at once.

The Wildwood School pedway site has been under consideration for the past few years. One problem with the site is lack of access. Town officials have tried unsuccessfully to negotiate access through an abuttor's property. Two other options were raised Thursday. One option would be access across wetlands on site. Though this solution may be approved by the Conservation Administrator, said Planning Director Lynn Duncan, it would also be very costly with the need to replicate any area disturbed. Member Ray Forest suggested they use a portion of the school property to gain entrance to the site.

Members said they would look into both options.

Duncan noted during discussion a major constraint seems to be the placement of the septic system. She pointed out that Title V regulations covering septic systems are strict and health officers would have to know the number of bedrooms planned for the property. The site itself is comprised of wetlands and uplands.

In discussing three scattered sites, the board noted one of the sites had no town water and one may not have enough frontage. Duncan said an in-house team of officials would review the sites and put together information on the physical restraints on each.

To help with site preparation Duncan suggested the board apply for a $3,000 grant for technical assistance on each site. The more lucrative MAP grants are no longer available, she said.

Mike Donovan suggested the board prepare a set of questions which might come up at town meeting. Forest agreed saying, "you just (have to) answer them right up front before they get blown all out of proportion." Vaughn Surprenant recommended they include neighbors in the process because abuttors have a vested interest in any nearby housing project. The board agreed.

Teachers' contract

riation of the voters. Peterson pointed out if the contract exceeds town meeting appropriation it would be up to the school board to reduce the budget to fall within the voted amount.

"That is your intent but it is not the language of the contract," Reidy replied.

School attorney Alan Altman suggested an addendum to the contract spelling out town meeting only has the authority to appropriate a bottom line figure. The superintendent said an addition to the agreement would require another ratification by the teachers. Privately, some officials and teachers have expressed reservations that the contract would be approved a third time given the fact that teachers in September only ratified it by a four-vote margin.

Peterson seemed to sum up what many committee members felt.

"This has been the most difficult decision I've ever had to make on this committee," he said. Of his vote in favor of the contract, Peterson explained "I realize it's not a perfect solution. It stinks. But the alternative stinks even more."

When questioned the next day about the board's action, Town Manager Michael Caira said he was disappointed because the new agreement "fails to take into consideration the fiscal constraints of the town."

"I would have been more comfortable with a one year contract. Personally, I think it (approving a three year agreement) was an unwise thing to do," Caira said. At the same time, though, the manager recognized that the committee had "an awful tough decision to make."

Fay gets dry response from water commissioners

by Capt. Larz Neilson
Supt. of Schools Bill Fay received some surprising answers last Thursday evening when he went to the Water Commissioners' meeting to talk over the cost of water for the schools.

Last year the commissioners agreed to forego all charges for water for the schools. Fay was at the meeting to see if the same courtesy could be again extended, this year.

Chairman Art Smith answered. "What about those drinking water jugs in the schools?" he asked. "That's a sensitive point — buying drinking water from out of town!"

"We sell the best water!" he said. Fay told Smith that it was the teachers who were buying those jugs of drinking water. "Last year you waived the water bills, on account of the budget problems in the schools."

Smith told him the Water Department waived the water bills for the town, which was $4000, and for the schools, which was over $13,000. He added that the sewer main for the Shawsheen School cost nothing — "thanks to Jay Tighe."

Fay: "I was told you were giving water to the town, but not to the schools!"

Smith: "That, last year, was a one time deal!"

Water Commissioner Jim Ring: "We voted one year."

Smith continued, "What if the WHA (housing authority) asks — then they'll ask for the low and moderate income housing — then we'll get the Drop-in Center, and the churches. Then we'll have a $100,000 dollar deficit!"

Smith went on to tell how the Water Department is replacing under-sized water mains, on some streets — for better fire protection. "It will cost us $300,000. What will we be forced to do next?"

Fay told the commissioners, "We're bursting at the seams for space — I think we have overcome any animosity." He went on to describe the budget the schools had put together. "Uphill battle. Trying to maintain a quality education."

The churches and the senior center, he observed are not really a part of the town government.

The schools, he said, can still be expected to "peak up." He thought the schools needed another $200,000 to keep the system. "We are not too proud to get another $13,000."

He made a remark about maybe having to close the Wildwood School.

Smith and Ring went on to say how they will be meeting with the town manager and the town council, next week.

"We sell water. That's our income. It is unbelievable what we pay the Town of Wilmington. We are operating four people short — everything in our system is automatic. We have a good record, doing things right. That helps us to pay for things."

Jim Ring: "The guy who figures out the school bus schedules. $10-15 grand for transportation of athletes. That's our water bill!"

Fay said the schools had "cut 52 positions. I think education is everybody's baby!"

frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

The Town Crier has learned that Wilmington officials are scrambling as new budget figures from the town manager's office reveal a near-$1 million budget shortfall for this fiscal year, triggered by a drastic decline in local receipts and exasperated by the new and controversial teachers' contract.

Slightly more than half of the projected deficit is slated to be pushed into the next fiscal year as selectmen take advantage of the state law allowing year-end teachers' salaries to be recorded on the FY93 ledgers. This would leave a remaining shortfall of some $400,000 for selectmen and school committee members to grapple with.

The new deficit crisis comes at the heels of growing friction between Town Hall and Roman House officials over the teachers' contract approved last week, awarding $2 million over four years just as pay freezes are in effect for the remaining town bargaining units.

The finance committee has already condemned the package and town budget officials appear more concerned with the second year of the contract than the first. This year's two percent hike will be less difficult to swallow than the subsequent five percent negotiated for next year and FY 94. The stage may be set for a Prop. 2 1/2 override battle, just as Billerica and Tewksbury prepare for their own override attempts. But conventional wisdom views a Depression-era property tax hike as D-O-A, and layoffs may be the ironic funding mechanism for the teachers' salary boost.

Town Hall insiders are seeing a politically awkward situation take birth as the school committee serves the public a controversial teachers' pay package in stark contrast to the manager's carefully planned austerity program. The town manager's father chairs the school committee. "I'm maintaining my position that the teachers' contract is overly generous considering the economic climate," said Town Manager Mike Caira.

Chairman Aldo Caira supported the teachers' pay hike last week and subsequently survived an attempted coup d'etat from board members Callan, Kane and Paglia. The impromptu strike visualized perfectly the fratricide on the local education board and the undiminished level of personality politics.

The meeting's start saw member Peggy Kane demanding the identity of an informant who allegedly leaked information appearing in this space regarding behind-the-scenes maneuvering on the RIF policy controversy of last week. Peggy, my lips are sealed but thanks for reading.

Board members DeMarco, Fenton and Peterson joined the chairman in supporting Superintendent Fay's negotiations with the teachers' union, crediting the initial two percent raise as a win for the town considering teachers had been originally contracted for seven percent. "The WTA had a binding contract, and as much as the times call for pay freezes they wouldn't make that ultimate sacrifice," said Phil Fenton. "We would have had nothing to stand on in court, and Bill Fay and Caira were smart enough to realize that and get the best they could for the town."

While the WTA would point to the rehiring of 13 teachers as the education caveat of the contract settlement, it could be just an employment revolving door. The new deficit will force new layoffs, which could have been alleviated were the teachers' union philosophically akin to their municipal counterparts, willing to live with the same paycheck as last year to preserve good public services and colleagues' jobs. "The union understands full well that if layoffs are needed to fund this that's okay," said School Committeeman John DeMarco.

Ironically, the rehiring of 13 professionals has triggered some chaos in the system as students and parents complain about class reassignments just a short while before the marking period ends.

Critics continue to lambaste the new pay package as untimely. "Eighty percent of the Wilmington Teachers' Association lives outside of Wilmington, and people who do live here who are out of work are going to have to foot this bill," said Tony Accardi, who chaired the school committee for three years.

Some contract critics are naturally aiming their salvos at Superintendent Bill Fay, who had the thankless task of negotiating with teachers, an encounter not unlike dealing with Persian rug dealers. Education professionals continue to do detrimental harm to their reputations and public image when they push for raises in the middle of this depression. It's called the shoot-yourself-in-the-foot public relations strategy, meaning reputations and public confidence are nothing when put side-to-side with cool cash.

One would think that teachers themselves, self-portrayed as the saviors of American youth, would actually be the first to forego pay increases so that their freshmen union members would be saved unemployment, and kids saved crowded classrooms. But the teachers' union, forever controlled by arrogant senior members, couldn't care less. This isn't education, it's money talking.

Whatever happened to the real unions, the ones that really stood for something — something called people, men and women in need? The old union shops of days gone by would pool together money and resources to give an injured worker a continuing pay check, and stand together no matter what, always united for the common good so that every member was guaranteed a job, a living to put food on the table and roof over head. The teachers' unions of contemporary Massachusetts are pathetic not just because they ask for cash while the unemployment rate in the Lowell area is 12 percent, but because they throw away the livelihoods of their own junior membership just to line the deep pockets of the tenured, senior echelon.

These people are frauds, plain and simple, and Bill Fay is hardly to blame, anymore than Mike Caira would have been had the town side unions not displayed their integrity and good sense of reality. Fay deserves our sympathy for having to sit across the table and deal with this gang, the majority of whom have no roots in this community and the tired, old leadership of which couldn't care less.

point of view

Teachers' contract — counting the cost

by Arlene Surprenant

Wilmington teachers have a new contract, but at what cost? While major benefits of the successor contract are the return of valuable teachers, clarity of language in the Reduction in Force policy governing layoffs, and a potential savings of close to a million dollars this year alone (savings which comes from a negotiated salary increase and possible litigation costs), many feel the cost will be too high.

Our teachers, like other town employees, are to be commended for giving up this year's seven percent raise and taking only two percent in step increases. This is nothing more than the majority of town unions have agreed to since any municipal employees not at the top of their salary scale are reportedly eligible to also receive step increases. It is doubtful whether most people would be willing to cut back on salaries already in place, salaries which are already paying for mortgage, food, and clothing bills. Unlike the town unions, the teachers' contract was still in effect for one more year. While town unions negotiated for a new contract, teachers were still bound by the old. Despite the sacrifice made by the teachers this year, however, there are many in town who are pointing fingers at the teachers association and the teachers themselves for wanting job security and for successfully negotiating a three-year successor contract with a whopping 18 percent total increase. Public perception seems to be that the teachers are greedy and will emerge winners because they are assured raises in the years ahead. It has been pointed out by several officials that town employees who may not be willing to forego raises next year will ask for similar increases. No one can blame them if they do. It's almost as if the ratification of this contract has widened the gulf between "the town side" and the "school side." For further proof, one had only to listen to angry selectmen last night as they targeted the school committee for their willingness to give into the teachers' "demands." There have been bitter feelings in the past over the lack of town meeting control over line items in the school budget. It seems that this contract will push those feelings to the forefront once again.

The new contract has also gone far to further tarnish the image of the school committee. Though there had been division on the board before as members took stands on issues close to their hearts, one has never seen the kind of rudeness, back-biting, and inappropriate attention to trivialities that has been evidenced at recent meetings on the contract. The constant bickering and even attacks on other members' views has cast an unprofessional light on a board which should have as its main focus our children -- and not each other. As the Town Manager Michael Caira recently told this paper, "to become petty and vindictive and trivialize things is counter-productive." One can only agree.

Though the contract will bring back experienced teachers and free up dollars to reinstate programs previously cut, there is a good possibility that our children may suffer further from this approach. Some residents are already questioning the advisability of incorporating these teachers back into the system. Others, like this reporter, favor the move to keep quality teachers in Wilmington, but are uncertain if this move is educationally sound given the fact that we are partway into the school year. Supt. Bill Fay has said he favors putting the 12 or 13 tenured teachers back into their old classes or levels. This spells disruption to classes already in session as teachers are transferred around in the system once again. While recognizing that the superintendent is between a rock and a hard place and more chaos may have ensued next year without a new contract, one can only hope that students who have grown comfortable with their teachers and classes will be able to adjust once more.

Bob Peterson said it best when he said there is no perfect solution. Watching selectmen and school committeemen try to work out the town's fiscal problems has been as enlightening as watching U.S. senators perform during what one selectman called "the Clarence and Anita Show." All board members however, were in agreement on one thing: that voting on the contract and the deferral of teachers' salaries has been one of the toughest decisions they've ever been called on to make. It was obvious each board member truly voted his or her own conscience. Now it's up to each one of us to decide if the new contract — and the deferral plan that wasn't supposed to be tied to it in any way — is worth the cost.

25 years ago

The October 20, 1966 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Richard Silverman, son of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Silverman of Middlesex Avenue, was chosen as a member of the New England Conservatory of Music Chorus which was scheduled to tour the Soviet Union and the Republic of Spain.

Steve McNamara, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray McNamara of Middlesex Avenue was a freshman at Merrimack College.

Poloian's Real Estate offered a six room cape in North Wilmington for rent at $175 per month; five room ranch, $150 or a six room older home with two baths, also at $175.

Diamond Crystal Salt Company advertised for: "female" permanent third shift packers (probably not discriminatory in 1966, but in 1991, even the papergirl is a "paperperson.")

Ellen Sampson, former mayor of Lowell, a candidate for County Commissioner stole the show at the recent Wil/Tewks. Republican Night by declaring that she was dissatisfied with Cambridge politicians always winning Middlesex County Elections. "I live north of the Mason Dixon Line, and for me the Mason Dixon line is somewhere in Arlington. It is time that people in the northern part of the county were represented in government."

Elia's Country Store offered a half gallon of milk for 45 cents; haddock fillets, 79 cents a pound and American Dry tonic, six 16 ounce bottles for 49 cents.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I would like through the Town Crier to thank all the many people who made the display of the Names Memorial Aids Quilt a success.

To Roger Lessard, Earl Lesperance and their staff of workers, you all pitched in to hang quilts from beams, cover the gymnasium floor and stood by us with your help. Without all of you, we could never have even begun.

To Mr. William Fay who made it possible for us to have use of the high school gymnasium and the high school and a very special thank you to him for giving such a moving speech at our opening ceremony.

To everyone at Wilmington High School, you all made us feel so welcome, from the staff to the students. To Mr. Jim Gillis for reorganizing the athletic schedule to allow us use of the gym for four days. A thank you to Mrs. Anne Quinn who fed the volunteers lunch on Friday, and to the very dedicated group of high school students who gave up their weekend and volunteered their time to help us out wherever they were needed.

When you begin a project of this magnitude, it can only be done if you are lucky enough to have people who are as committed to it as you are. Many times donations come from places that you least expect it, a thank you goes to Uncle Mickey's for donating our breakfast one morning, another to Rocco's Restaurant for a delicious dinner; to Farmer and the Del for another breakfast and sandwiches both days for lunch and to Designs by Don for all the beautiful flowers.

To my committee who held me together and were always there to pitch in whenever there was a need. Linda Scifo, Lynda Hague, Carol Mutchler and Norma Rushon, there are no words to truly tell all of you how very much you all mean to me, thank you for believing that we could indeed do this!

To all the wonderful volunteers, your hours and hours of dedication will never be forgotten, you all were an inspiration to me. A special thank you to the people in my life who have stood by me, put up with me planning this for the past nine months and always encouraged me with this goal. Your understanding and love will be with me always.

To my daughter, Kelly, you continually amaze me, you again truly were the shining star of our weekend and I love you so very much.

Finally, and so important, to the 3,700 people of all ages who took the time to view the Quilt. It is my hope that by seeing the Quilt, you came away with a different perspective of the Aids epidemic. It truly makes no difference whether you are seven months old or 40 years old, all these victims were truly loved. The Quilt is a compassionate way to keep their memories alive.

Thank you all again, with much love and a hope that someday soon, no more panels will have to be added to the Quilt.

Sincerely,
Suzanne Cushing

Dear Larz:

As the Town Crier has so completely reported, the recent Tewksbury Homecoming was a huge success. We met our objectives of providing a means for our fellow "townies" to have an enjoyable time, renew old friendships and to get back into the swing of things after the summer. This annual event has become a trademark of Tewksbury, one that we have a right to be proud of!

Although much of the work was performed by the committee and whoever we could shanghai, it is appropriate to publicly recognize the many town organizations and private companies that made a financial contribution. Without them we would have been high and dry!

Our sincerest thanks go to: Tewksbury Auto Parts, Raytheon Corporation, RE/MAX Hearthstone Realty, Father Coppens Council, K of C., Tewksbury Water Department, B.P.O.E. No. 2070, Tewksbury Police Association, DAV No. 110, Tewksbury Municipal Employees Assoc., AFSCME, American Legion Post No. 259, Tewksbury Municipal Empl. Fed. Credit Union, Tewksbury Arts Lottery.

A special thanks to the Tewksbury Police Explorer Post for their many good deeds and assistance throughout the weekend. Additionally, Bill Burris and the Tewksbury DPW made many significant efforts on our behalf, for which, we are grateful.

Very soon we will start planning Homecoming No. 5 for September, 1992. We welcome volunteers to serve on the committee. Give me a call, if interested. Next year we are planning an even bigger and better weekend, including a parade, the Muster Park dedication and many surprises!

Thank you for your coverage and support.

For the committee,
Charlie Priest, Secretary
Tewksbury
Homecoming Boosters

Dear Larz:

The past couple of weeks I have been reading in your paper about the odor problems concerning Raffi and Swanson.

Larz - my parents have lived in that area for the past 35 years. I can remember growing up as a child and enduring the horrendous smells and my parents calling the Board of Health with nothing being done.

My parents went to the Board of Health on numerous occasions and nothing was ever done.

I guess my point is after 35 years, is something finally being done? I think that it is disgusting and doesn't say much for your town officials. Don't think that Raffi and Swanson is alone in creating health problems in south Wilmington.

Sincerely,
Cindy (Jepson) Winston

ABSORBING INFORMATION

Many women who regularly apply moisturizer to their skin may be indulging in too much of a good thing. Using excess amounts of moisturizer can lead to clogged pores and pimples. One way to tell if one's application of moisturizer is too indulgent is to check the skin 15 minutes after moisturizer use. If the skin is still slick or shiny, either too much moisturizer is being applied or the moisturizer's formula is too heavy. Those who exercise regularly should moisturize their skin with light lotions. Heavier moisturizers only serve to trap perspiration and irritate skin. It is also recommended that heavy creams be avoided around the delicate eye area, where they may trap moisture and induce puffiness. Moisturizer applied to any area of the skin should be readily absorbed.

Your hair also needs moisture to look and feel its best. ## WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO CD RATES?

The rates that banks are paying CD depositors have dropped dramatically in recent months. This has created a major problem for investors who have been relying on the interest income their CD produce to pay for their living expense. Let's examine why this is happening.

In the Northeast a not so obvious reason is that banks don't really want your deposit. While this may seem strange, if you think about it a bit, it makes a lot of sense. Understand that banks make money when they make loans. When they make loans they collect interest on that loan. The difference between what they pay you and the interest which they collect from the borrower is the bank's profit.

You've read about the "credit crunch" in New England. Banks are very hesitant to make loans, and they absolutely will not make the large commercial loans that have caused so many recent losses. It's not that they don't have money to lend, they simply are very scared to lend.

The only reason that the banks want your CD is so that they can loan the money to someone else at a profit. Since it costs the bank money, (the interest they pay you) to take your deposit, and they are not making loans, your deposit is really not welcome.

An analogy is the guest who comes to visit and stays too long. You don't want to insult the person, after all they may be your friend, but you do want them to leave. What do you do? You indicate through your action that its time to leave. Most people will take the hint and go. It is no different in the world of banking. The bank, by dropping the rate they are willing to pay you on your CD and other saving accounts is asking you to take your money and leave.

The "problem" is going to get worse. Recently, the Federal Reserve lowered the discount rate to 5%. The discount rate is the rate that member banks pay to borrow money.

If they can borrow money from the Federal Reserve bank at this rate, it's not likely that they will be willing to pay you more. Maybe it's time that you take the hint and take your money elsewhere.

TAXES AND INFLATION

For someone in a combined Federal and state tax bracket of 33%, the after tax on a CD is less than 4%. Inflation in the Boston market area for the year ended May 1991 was 5.1%. Simple math tells us that after inflation and taxes, the net rate of return on a CD is -1.1%! In other words you are losing money each year.

OTHER ALTERNATIVES

There are many other alternatives. A detailed discussion is beyond the scope of this article. Please call my office and we can discuss your specific need and objectives and tailor a program to meet those needs.

Women's Club to hold dollhouse show

The Wilmington Women's Club will hold an exhibition of dollhouses Saturday, October 26 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Wilmington Arts Center, 219 Middlesex Ave.

Featured will be newly constructed and old houses, stores, gazebos and miniatures in various containers. There will be some approximately 100 years old and some are replicas of former homes of the owners. Many will have been built by the owners, usually in the scale of one inch to a foot, although the tiny scale of 1/2 inch to the foot may have been used.

You will be able to see the detailed and painstaking work that goes into these "dreamhouses" in those still under construction. Most will be furnished. This can be as fascinating as the houses themselves and great care and thought is given to the furnishings.

Part of the fun in dollhousing, as in any hobby, is the sharing with others. If you have something you would like to display, please call Liz White at 508-658-2042. Today, this is one of the most popular hobbies. It is no longer just for little girls. Men and women may have started by building these for their children or grandchildren but they usually end up with one of their own. Won't you join us for this show? The admission fee is $2 for adults and $1 for children. Everyone is welcome, but be careful, dollhousing is addictive!

Open house marks League's 30th year

On Tuesday, October 22, the League of Women Voters of Wilmington (LWVW) will celebrate its 30th anniversary with an open house between 7 and 9:30 p.m. at Wilmington's Fourth of July Headquarters. Residents of Wilmington and Tewksbury are cordially invited to join them for refreshments and reminiscing.

Since 1961 the Wilmington League has actively pursued its goal of encouraging citizens to participate in the democratic process locally, as well as on state and national levels. Through the years services to voters have included candidates' nights, where residents questioned and observed those running for office; publishing voters' guides in the local newspapers; and public informational meetings on current topics. LWVW has provided information on voting to local schools, and donated scholarships to deserving graduates of Wilmington High School.

While the League of Women Voters never endorses a particular candidate or political parties, it does take action on selected governmental issues. Before we lobby, however, members study an issue extensively, and come to consensus as a group on what position(s) the League will support or oppose.

LWVW's local program includes positions on zoning, education, water quality and supply, and housing. The local League can also act on positions held by LWVMassachusetts and LWVUS.

This year LWVW is reviewing the local sign bylaw and participating in the national League's study on health care. The League is sponsoring Wilmington's ninth graders in the nationwide "Citizen Bee," and plans to present a candidate's night next April. Local members are also looking forward to working at or otherwise attending LWVUS's national convention in Boston next June, and the annual crafts' fair on the town's common.

Members think they have much to be proud of as the League begins its fourth decade of "making a difference" in Wilmington. If learning more about today's issues in your town, state, and federal governments interests you, come to the open house October 22 and ask how the Wilmington League of Women Voters can help you. Membership is open to all citizens of voting age, and the Fourth of July Headquarters is wheelchair accessible. For more information, call Pat Rodan (657-7117), Barbara Baldwin (658-6416) or Bett Siracusa (658-3963).

Counseling service offers course on effective parenting

Effective Parenting to Build a Healthy Family Atmosphere is a parenting course being offered by the Wilmington Family Counseling Service, Inc., in conjunction with the Wilmington Public Schools. The course will meet on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 8:30 for eight weeks beginning October 29 at the Shawshen Elementary School library. The course leader, Joan Wing LICSW, is a clinical social worker with 21 years experience who has led parenting programs for 11 years.

Most parents receive no formal training in parenting, yet consider raising healthy children one of their most important goals in life. This parent training will help parents:

Communicate well with their children; use discipline effectively; build their children's self esteem and sense of responsibility; foster cooperation and mutual respect; maintain a calm family atmosphere.

The Systematic Training for Effective Parenting (STEP) model used in the course is a logical, practical approach to parenting used by more than two million parents nationwide: the most widely used parent education program in the country.

The course is co-sponsored by the Wilmington Public Schools but is open to pre-school and elementary school parents. Class size will be limited to the first 20 parents. The fee for the course is $75 including the handbook ($25 deposit; $25 at first session; $25 at second session).

To register, call Dr. Carol Golub at the Wilmington Family Counseling Service, Inc., at 658-9889, by Thursday, October 24, 1991.

Wilmington senior topics

Elder services

The Elder Service Commissioners meeting will be held in room 9 at the Town Hall Tuesday, October 22 starting at 7 p.m. This meeting will be televised. It is an open meeting to any resident who wishes to attend. If you would like to be placed on the agenda please put your request in writing and mail or take it to the director before Friday, October 18. It is only at the commissioners monthly meeting in the town hall that motions are made and voted on.

Blood pressure checks

The nurse will be at the center Thursday, October 17 starting at 1:30 p.m. She will be checking blood pressures and giving the diabetes test. She will not be giving flu shots at the center until Wednesday October 30. At both of these clinics, after you have signed in, ask at the desk for a number.

Hearing aid specialist

The hearing aid specialist will be at the center Friday, October 18 on appointment only. If you wish to see him, please call the center no later than Thursday, Oct. 17, give your name when you call. He will only remain until he has checked seniors with appointments.

Dr. Leavitt

Podiatrist Dr. Leavitt has also requested that seniors wishing treatment at the center call and make an appointment. He will be at the center, also in October. These two health providers come to the center for the convenience of seniors. They are very busy in their offices. They have requested to have seniors make an appointment. That will allow them to know how much time will have to be spent at the center. Please try to cooperate with their request.

Senior Fair

The Senior Fair will be held Friday night, October 18 from 6 to 9 and Saturday, October 19 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Don't forget to take in all your chance books. The drawing for all the excellent prizes will take place at the end of the Fair on Saturday afternoon. You cannot win if your chance is not in the bowl.

With Christmas not far away, sell a chance or so to your children and friends. I am sure they would like to take a chance for $1 on winning one of the three $100 bills donated by all the seniors along with a chance to win one of the 30 or so other prizes many of which are also money.

Don't forget many cakes, pies, and cookies will be needed for the pastry table and for the luncheon. Everyone in past years has responded to the committee's request for goodies to the delight of all. So let us not disappoint them this year. Everyone has worked hard to make this fair the most profitable. When I see all the beautiful articles that have come to the center, you will know what I mean. But it will be all in vain if all of us do not attend and take with us our families and friends. See you at the fair.

Health insurance

The skyrocketing cost of Medicare supplemental health insurance called Medigap Insurance is bankrupting the elderly. Over the last decade in Massachusetts Medex insurance premiums have increased by 300 percent. Last year's 67 percent increase alone wiped out 10 years of modest Social Security cost of living increases received by seniors. In 1990 alone 62,000 seniors either dropped or downgraded their Medex coverage due to high premiums.

There are now 250,000 Massachusetts seniors who are unable to afford health insurance. Since Medicare now is not covering the 80 percent we were told it was going to cover. But less than 50 percent of out-of-pocket health costs and since elder health care costs twice that of younger people, uninsured seniors live at great risk of personal bankruptcy. Uninsured seniors also avoid critical preventative care services simply because they cannot afford it. Now is the time to contact our political representatives in Washington and let them know it is time to pass a health care bill that will cover all of our medical care that will be affordable to all of us.

I have letters on the counter to our Senators Kennedy and Kerry and our Congressman Edward Markey expressing our request. All you have to do is take the three letter sign them air mail them to the address at the top of the letters. Even if you feel you can afford to pay for your health care think of the 250,000 of our seniors who cannot.

Winning Smile

Who said money can't make you happy? Steve Malfa was jumping with joy after winning $100,000 in the Mass Cash lottery game on Sept. 30. He bought his winning ticket at Uptown Deli, which receives a bonus of $1000.

Wilmington police news

Tripp named CLT district manager

Citizens for Limited Taxation has announced the appointment of Edwin "Ted" Tripp of Woodland Drive, Wilmington as district manager for the First Essex and Middlesex Senate District. This includes the towns of Boxford, Essex, Georgetown, Gloucester, Groveland, Hamilton, Ipswich, Manchester, Middleton, Newbury, North Reading, Rockport, Rowley, Topsfield, Wenham, West Newbury and Wilmington. The Reading precincts normally included in the senate district will not be part of Tripp's CLT district at this time.

This appointment by Citizens for Limited Taxation represents the board of directors' recent decision to expand the organization at the grass roots level by establishing a new network of CLT volunteers dispersed throughout the state. The state has been divided up into its 40 Senatorial Districts and a CLT District manager has been or will be assigned to each district. The district manager then organizes his/her district with additional town or area coordinators who will be in a position to provide direct local support. Such support may include the distribution of petition forms, tax-limiting information, signs, bumper stickers, etc.

The long term goal of this network is to provide a more effective means of harnessing and coordinating the tremendous state wide support CLT has enjoyed over the years. It will also allow the CLT membership to react more quickly to pending new tax legislation by keeping them up-to-date and better informed.

Those people in the First Essex and Middlesex district who wish to preserve Proposition 2 1/2 and controls state taxes and spending, can volunteer by contacting Ted Tripp at (508) 657-5659 or the CLT offices in Boston at (617) 426-2438.

Host Middies

Wilmington High School junior quarterback John O'Reilly will try to help the locals snap a two game losing streak when the Wildcats host Dracut Saturday afternoon. The Wildcats dropped a mistake-filled 28-14 decision at Haverhill last Saturday. The Tewksbury Redmen, behind the play of quarterback Dana Boudreau and their young running backs, bombed winless Lawrence, 39-14 Saturday for their second win in a row. This Saturday the Redmen host the tough Andover Golden Warriors.

Young Wildcats rip Waltham

The Wilmington Pop Warner Football D' Wildcats upped their record to 5-0-1 with a hard fought 19-6 victory over the Waltham Devil Dogs Sunday.

Derek Mazza scored his first of three touchdowns on the day with an 18 yard run in the first quarter. The extra point was also delivered by Derek.

Derek later scored his second touchdown on a 44 yard run on the second play of the third quarter, followed by a 55 yard interception to insure the victory with 1:40 left to go in the game.

Other highlights included a recovery of a Waltham fumble by Scott Aldrich and a fourth quarter interception by Mike Carlson.

Once again Wilmington's defensive squad led by Chris Butler, Russell Hubby, Mike Wilcox and Jonathan Aprile were the real winners, having held opponents to 24 points in six games this year

College Corner

Maiella veteran star

Three things are certain at Westfield State College - tuition and fee increases, long lines and championship cross country teams.

And the men's cross country team again is favored to run away with its' ninth straight Mass. State Conference championship under the veteran tutelage of 23rd year coach Jerry Gravel.

Gravel's track and field teams have won nine straight conference crowns to give the Running Owls a staggering 17 straight championships since 1982.

"We should be better than last year with five of our top seven returning plus the addition of several good freshmen," said Gravel. "We are better, more experienced and we have more depth."

Fitchburg posed the stiffest challenge to Gravel's juggernaut in the conference championships, which were scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 12 at Framingham State. The Falcons have three standout runners who could place 1-2-3 in the conference. They appear to lack depth, however.

"If they have a solid fourth runner we could be in trouble," noted Gravel. "I think it will be tougher to win again, but if our seventh best runner finishes ahead of their fourth we should be all right."

Swim program

The Merrimack Valley Pirates swim team is offering a pre-competitive program for young swimmers six to 12 years of age who have an interest in competitive swimming, but are not ready for the full commitment of a swim team.

The program will be conducted in eight lesson sessions on Sundays from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. at the Greater Lawrence Technical School pool on River Road in Andover and will begin October 6.

Pirate coaches and certified senior swimmers will provide instruction in stroke technique, starts, turns and practice drills. A small mini-meet will be held at the conclusion of each eight lesson session.

The cost for eight lessons is $50,

Dracut edges
Wilmington Mighty-Mites
In a hard fought contest Friday night, Wilmington lost to Dracut, 6-0.

Dracut's defense scored quickly on a turnover in the first quarter and held on for a 6-0 victory.

Wilmington and Dracut's defense played great, holding both high powered offenses in check.

Playing well for Wilmington on offense were running backs Jason Wagstaff, Bobby French, Dennis Sullivan and Mark Boudreau.

Offensively, on the line John DiPasquale, Adam Clancy, Ryan Graham, Jim Fennelly and Steve Muise played well.

Defensive standouts were Steve Biggins, Pat Cushing, Jonathan Fowle, Mike Herra, and Bill Cavanaugh. Brian LeBlanc and Andrew Campbell made numerous big plays on defense.

Wilmington plays East Boston at home this Friday at 7:30 p.m. Wilmington's record now stands at 1-3.

Super
save

Tewksbury High School goaltender Nik Fiore leaps high to make this save in a recent game against Lawrence Central Catholic. The Redmen maintained their hold on first place last week.

booters

Redmen soccer standouts Steve Previte (61) and Mark Boucher (36) have helped lead Tewksbury to first place in the Small School division of the MVC.

Senior captains Tom Maher and Wilmington's Paul Maiella have emerged as the leaders on and off the course.

Maher has earned all-conference honors twice and has looked strong in pre-season workouts. Maiella finished fifth in the conference a year ago.

Three sophomores who placed in the top eight of the 1990 conference championships give the Running Owls a very solid nucleus. James Gonsalves was the first conference freshman to cross the finish line as he placed fourth. John Donovan earned all conference honors by placing sixth and John Denehy was eighth.

"They are three good sophomores with more experience," said Gravel.

Freshmen who will make a run to crack the top seven are Darren Abreu and Mike Sullivan. Sophomore Mike Scanlon, transfer from UMass-Boston who ran track for the Owls last spring, also is a top seven candidate.

"Those three new guys could easily be in the top seven," said Gravel.

Gravel says that two newcomers who have looked good and have been working hard are freshman Kyle Rockett and sophomore Joe DaFonessa. Other returning veterans on the roster of 20 are juniors Joe Decie, Mark DalBon, Reynaldo Rodriguez and Brian Holbrook, and sophomore Mark Johnson.

Outside the conference, the Owls' goals are to finish third in the NCAA regional competition and sixth or better in the New England Division III Championships. The Owls were ninth in the New England finals a year ago.

Partridge hunt can be tricky

by Bill Conlon

The hunting season for partridge, or more properly Ruffed Grouse, opened last Friday in Massachusetts fields and forests.

Now the agony begins.

Partridge are contrary, difficult, tricky birds to hunt. The chicken-sized upland fowl are frequently found on fringes, where a forest or swamp gives way to open space like a power line easement or a field. The fringes allow sunlight to reach the forest floor, giving rise to first-growth plants which provide the bulk of a partridge's diet.

But there's nothing simple about partridge hunting. It's tough.

The birds are a mottled gray and black in color, which blends them into the forest floor litter. They are difficult to spot if they don't move. Keep your eyes peeled at the 20 to 30 yard range, keeping a lookout for something that looks just like a chicken standing there.

Partridge, however, won't stand in one place for long.

The birds will hold tight until you approach too closely for their peace of mind, then all hell breaks loose.

The natives called partridge "Old Thunderwings" and a woods hen on the bounce will gladly demonstrate where the name came from.

Partridge explode with a ruffling roar, sort of like a helicopter with a bad muffler taking off from a few feet away. The only gamebird that is worse for your heart is a woodcock, which waits until your boot blocks the sunlight before it flies up in your face. At least the partridge takes off from a few yards away.

Your objective, good hunter, is to get your shotgun to your shoulder, aim and squeeze a round of number 6 birdshot at the departing ball of thundering gray feathers. Oh yes, and try to hit the bird squarely.

Recovering from the near heart-attack, locating the source of the noise, pointing and shooting takes about 1.5 seconds, if your heart is still beating, while the bird needs only 1.2 seconds to disappear into the next ZIP code.

Wise hunters keep the safety ON, to avoid accident discharge of their shotgun. Switching your safety to the OFF position, however, eats up a crucial 0.2 of a second, which gives the partridge time for a cup of coffee before it zig-zags through the trees.

At best, if you anticipate a bird is about to explode out of a thicket, you can cut your response time to almost the same time it takes for the bird to get away. With good luck and a sixth sense about grouse, you may get one shot. One. Don't even bother carrying the extra weight of a double-barrel scattergun, because you'll never get a second shot at a partridge. Ain't no such thing.

But there are a few grouse tricks that may help give you an edge. I learned one a few years back, in the woods south of Barre, Mass.

Hunting near Barre, I had a bird explode right in front of me. It flew right to left for about 20 feet, then twisted 90 degrees and flew straight down a hole through the branches! I shouldered, pointed and squeezed, only to pull on a trigger that didn't budge. I forgot to switch off the safety, so the bird is most likely still laughing.

An escaping partridge may look like it's flying at top speed through impenetrable tangles of branches, but it's a gimmick -- it isn't voodoo. The grouse actually has its escape route picked in advance, and if you line yourself up just right, you can see a clear, open hole through the branches. A partridge may appear to do the impossible, by flying in a thicket that could make a bunny say ouch, but it's only a trick.

It takes double-extra caution and it violates what you were told in the Hunter Safety Course, but leaving your shotgun's safety OFF will save time. Be quick to switch the safety back on, for any reason, and walk slowly and carefully with an armed and dangerous shotgun.

But that fraction of a second can spell the difference between a bird in the pot and a laughing partridge.

At night, partridge roost in pines, well above the ground. Early and late hunters sometimes have birds exploding overhead, for a different kind of heart attack.

Dogs, for some reason, are of no value in partridge hunting. Training a dog for pheasants is easier, since pheasants are usually found in open fields, while partridge prefer dense woods and fringes. If there is such a thing as a Partridge Dog, I'd like to know about it.

Most likely, the only indication of a nearby partridge that you'll have is a sudden ROAR of feathers in the brush, which leaves you looking in all directions, trying to figure out what just happened. If your luck runs true, you might be treated to a glimpse of tailfeathers disappearing through the pines.

If God smiles upon you, there's a slim chance that you might actually get off a shot in time. But it's not likely.

And as for filling a daily bag limit of three partridge? Forget it.

Dream on. You'll get a hole-in-one in a hurricane first.

--- Tackle Box ---

Yet another tip of the hat to Tony Chamberlain of the Boston Globe, who offers a level-headed point of view in a publication that is sorely out of political touch. Tony wrote a column on Tuesday stating that all the writing he has done about the dangerously low ocean fish stocks has brought no response, but if he writes about hunting he draws a ton of hate mail. Species in danger of extinction isn't worth a letter, but killing game animals from New England's healthy and burgeoning upland populations brings down the lightning. Isn't that silly? Keep up the good work, Tony.

Top team

Senior Mark Boucher (36) and the TMHS soccer team will try to clinch first place this week.

SWEAT to clean Shawsheen River

The Shawsheen Watershed Environmental Action Team (SWEAT) and the Divers' Environmental Survey (DES) will hold the final Shawsheen River Cleanup of 1991 in Lawrence, October 19.

This will be the sixth SWEAT/DES collaboration on the Shawsheen River this year. Lawrence will be the sixth town in which a cleanup has taken place in 1991.

The Lawrence cleanup will mark the end of the first year of the projected 10 year Shawsheen Restoration Project, a long term grassroots effort to restore that beautiful river to the salmonid habitat it was before 1945.

Rising in Lexington, the Shawsheen River meanders through Bedford, Billerica, Wilmington, Tewksbury, Andover, North Andover and Lawrence before emptying into the Merrimack River. The last run of Atlantic Salmon in the Shawsheen River occurred in 1945. Since that time, development on its banks, ignorance of its beauty, and disregard for its value have brought it to the brink of death.

SWEAT and DES opted to begin the struggle to restore the river by cleaning out the channel. In six cleanups, an estimated seven tons (14,000 pounds) of man made materials have been pulled out of the river bottom. Included in this tonnage have been a home heating oil tank, an asphalt smoother, a bedframe, a rifle, dozens of rounds of live ammunition, dozens of shopping carts, enough car parts to construct several complete but rusty automobiles, and uncounted tires, bottles, cans, and unidentifiable metal and plastic objects.

These foreign objects raise the bottom of the river, making it wider and shallower, which:

Kills the fish, exacerbates erosion, promotes flooding, warms the water, lowers the water's oxygen content, increases suspended particulate content, enhances algae and aquatic weed growth and expands mosquito spawning habitat.

We are cleaning out the channel to put a stop to these problems. Route 114 bridge over the Shawsheen River, Lawrence/North Andover; 8 a.m. to noon, October 19. Take I-495 north or south to exit 42A, right off ramp .25 mile. Call (508) 851-9505 for more information.

ARE YOU PROTECTED?

by Edward H. Wilkens

GOING AWAY?

QUESTION: We're going to be away for a few weeks. What's a good way to protect our property from burglars?

ANSWER: Disguise the fact that your house is empty of people. Put a stop to all regular deliveries like mail and newspapers. A doorstep strewn with newspapers is a sure sign that no one's at home.

Ask your neighbors to keep an eye on the house and also the local police. Let them know when you'll be leaving and when you expect to return. Invest in automatic timers to keep the house lighted in the evening. Also, there are burglar alarms available today in all price ranges.

DON'T ADVERTISE to potential burglars if you are going away on vacation.

Health Center hosts panel on breast cancer

Breast cancer is the most common form of cancer in American women: one out of nine women will develop breast cancer in her lifetime. In 1991, over 175,000 new cases are projected, and 44,500 women will die of the disease. Many of the 175,000 American women may not know a few simple facts about early detection.

In observation of National Breast Cancer Awareness Month, the Regional Health Center in Wilmington will host a free panel discussion on breast cancer awareness to be held on October 23, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. A Winchester Hospital physician, nurse, radiologist and radiology technician and a representative from "Reach to Recovery" will host the discussion. The topics covered will include breast health and current trends, risk reduction techniques and interpretation of mammography.

For more information on this free program, call the Health Education Department at Winchester Hospital at (617) 756-2220.

Continental restores Spanish programming

Continental Cablevision returned the Univision Spanish - language service to its cable channel lineup Monday, October 14, in four towns including Wilmington.

The move comes in response to calls and letters from more than 200 Hispanic customers and Spanish language students after Continental dropped Univision and some of the programming on the Viewer's Choice Preview channel on Oct. 1 to make room for the American Movie Classics and Comedy Central services.

"We were trying to respond to the wishes of the vast majority of our customers by adding AMC and Comedy Central, by far the two most requested new channels in our customer surveys and calls from subscribers," said Continental General Manager Will Richmond. "But, unfortunately, those same surveys simply did not accurately reflect the significant number of viewers who regularly watch and enjoy Univision.

"We heard from them in large numbers after dropping Univision," Richmond said, "and we're grateful for their calls and letters, because that's the way programming changes are made at Continental - to meet the needs and preferences of our customers."

Continental is now making technical adjustments at the high end of its channel spectrum to activate a frequency that will allow the return of Univision, Richmond said.

Univision, which was carried on Channel 23 until Oct. 1, now will be seen on Channel 53. Metro Marketplace, a real estate classified ad service that had been occupying Channel 53, will be moved to the newly activated Channel 57.

Univision was to have been dropped from Continental's Woburn channel lineup as well, but was moved to Channel 52 after Mayor John W. Rabbitt cleared use of that inactive public access channel.

Navy, Coast Guard tangled with German subs prior to Pearl Harbor

How many veterans of World War II can say they were engaged in hostilities before December 7, 1941?

Possibly there are some men who were serving under the British, or other European flag. That might count up to half a dozen persons who could answer "Yes."

No one who served under the US flag can say this — with but one exceptional circumstance. If that man was serving in the U.S. Navy, or the U.S. Coast Guard, in the days before Pearl Harbor, and if the vessel on which he was serving was in the Neutrality Patrol, in the North Atlantic Ocean, then he might be able to answer Yes, to such a question.

The Neutrality Patrol was established by Franklin D. Roosevelt some time in 1940. It was one way in which he could help the hard pressed Royal (British) Navy.

German submarines were sinking ships faster than they could be replaced, and Britain was having a hard time importing enough food to feed the British peoples, and to keep the British war effort going.

By establishing the Neutral Zone, encompassing about half of the North Atlantic Ocean, Roosevelt extended a helping hand to the British. The ships of the US Navy and Coast Guard were ordered to sink or capture any German submarine in the "American" half of the Atlantic.

It worked — at least in part. More ships did get to Britain.

The USS Campbell had been designed to be a "Weather Ship" — a vessel which could take station in a region of the North Atlantic, and stay in that position for months, reporting on the weather conditions. She was a big vessel, 327 feet long, with a 20 knot speed. The Campbell was one of the better armed vessels of the US

Bill Ingram

Coast Guard — two five inch guns, two four inch guns, four 20 millimeters, and a bunch of .50 machine guns.

Athlea "Bill" Ingram, who will be 72 years old in November, was a Seaman First Class on the Campbell, in 1941. He served on that vessel from May 5, 1940 to December 1943.

The Campbell was at sea, protecting a British convoy in the Neutrality Zone, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. Two days later Adolf Hitler declared war on the United States.

There were millions of US men serving at that time, but there were not millions on the North Atlantic. That area, definitely, became an "action zone" on December 9, 1941.

The Campbell, it seems, sank only one German submarine. But Ingram has a funny story of a small British vessel in one convoy which was so small it was often mistaken as a submarine — hostile, of course.

The Campbell would serve as a Convoy Escort, between Argentina, Newfoundland and London-derry, Northern Ireland. There vessels of the Royal Navy would take over. Don't ask Ingram how many voyages he made, back and forth on the Atlantic, in those three and a half years.

The convoys varied in strength, many had a total of 76 vessels. One had only 17. Seventeen small vessels, loaded with molasses.

That was a particular convoy which was supposed to attract the attention of the German submarines. The time was November 1942, and the United States was about to invade North Africa.

Those seventeen vessels according to the crew of the Campbell, were out in the North Atlantic to attract the attention of the German U Boats so that the invasion fleets could cross without attack — and they did!

Ingram left the Campbell in December 1943. He had been promoted to Boatswain's Mate First Class. He was assigned to the USS Montauk, CG., Weather Patrol. The zone of duty for that Weather Patrol was Iceland and Greenland. He visited Reykjavik, Iceland, and two ports in Greenland.

After the war Ingram bought a home in Wilmington, in 1953. It is on Wing Road. No US Coast Guard cutter has ever visited that place.

Tech open house focuses on 'high skills'

"High Skills - High Pay" is the theme for the Thursday, October 24 annual Community Open House at Shawsheen Tech. Visitors to the school will view and participate from 7 to 9 p.m. in displays and presentations offered by the 19 vocational and technical educational programs found at Shawsheen.

Students, teachers, guidance counselors, and graduates will be available to answer questions about the school, its programs, and the opportunities offered for any student who wants to prepare himself or herself for success in the highly skilled job market of the 21st century.

Visitors will be able to watch students in the Culinary Arts Department prepare lobster pie and chicken cordon bleu. They will also be able to stroll to the bakery to sample and buy delicacies prepared by the student bakers. Along the way to the bakery, they may stop by the Technical Illustration Department to watch computerized graphic design work and observe how advertising page layouts are done. Visitors to the Graphic Arts Department may also choose a particular design for a customized button while observing how a copy center functions. They will also see letterpress printing and the various kinds of lithographic processes. Those interested in computer technology may stop by the Date Processing area for a demonstration of intercomputer communications and minicomputer networking. The Cosmetology Department, meanwhile, will offer haircuts and manicures for two dollars to those interested. Blood pressure monitoring, EKG monitoring, and vision testing will be available to visitors to the Health Technology Department. The Business Technology Department will demonstrate the Lotus and WordPerfect computer programs. The growing use of the computer for instructional purposes will also be visible in many of the academic areas, such as writing, reading, mathematics, and science. Among the many other activities offered for the evening, visitors to the Tech will also be able to examine craters on the moon using a Celestron eight inch telescope (weather permitting), to participate in the Project Adventure obstacle course, and to learn how to quickly repair a leaky faucet.

The pool schedule for Open House includes a swim school demonstration, aquasize and diving demonstrations, and time for a family swim.

Seventh and eighth grade students and their parents from the Shawsheen District towns are especially invited to the Community Open House; other interested residents are also welcome. Visitors can register for door prizes, many of which are products and services of the vocational and technical programs at Shawsheen.

MassBank awarded five-star rating

Bauer Financial Reports, Inc. (BFR) a Coral Gables, Fla research firm has announced that MassBank for Savings, of Reading has been awarded its five star rating. This prestigious award identifies this institution as one of the safest, most credit worthy savings associations in the United States.

The award is based on a zero to five star rating assigned by BFR based on its analysis of the March 31, 1991 financial data as filed with federal regulators.

A five star rating, for the safest savings associations in the country, indicates that the association's adjusted tangible capital exceeds 6.0 percent of tangible assets, its risk-based capital ratio exceeds 9.25 percent, that there are no excessive delinquencies or repossessed assets and that the association was profitable — or suffered an insignificant loss for the quarter ended March 31, 1991. Paul A. Bauer, President, said "Although the total number of savings associations nationwide decreased by four during the first quarter 1991, the total number of five star rated institutions increased by one. As expected, stronger savings and cooperative banks are growing stronger and consequently safer."

All the savings associations that qualified for a five star rating received a free, personalized award certificate in recognition of their achievement to display on their premises.

Bauer Financial Reports, Inc., analyzes and compiles data on all U.S. banks, thrifts and credit unions.

Lutheran Church of the Redeemer unveils its magnificent new organ

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

The Reverend Richard E. Koenig, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in Woburn, looks rather Biblically on the timing of the dedication of the new Organ that will be providing the musical backdrop for the liturgies at the church.

Referring to the loss of the E. and G.G. Hook organ from the former Unitarian Universalist Church in downtown Woburn, Reverend Koenig said "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away."

The Hook Organ was recently taken out of the former church building and shipped to Berlin, Germany where it will be rebuilt for use.

In the meantime, the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer is ready to unveil its new George Bozeman, Jr. Pipe Organ, Opus 49. It is expected that the tone of the new tracker type organ will well match that of the two Hook organs that still exist, in the community, at the First Congregational Church and Saint Charles Roman Catholic Church.

The public will have its first chance to make a decision on its own during the Rite of Dedication, Sunday at 9 a.m. and the Dedication Celebration that will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday evening.

All the stops have been pulled out for the Sunday night celebration. The guest artist is Dr. Paul Manz, an internationally known Lutheran organist and a composer on the faculty of the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago.

A brass quintet, under the direction of Stoneham's John Asgerisson, and the Church's Senior Choir, under the direction of Margaret Butt, will also perform during the ceremony.

"This will not just be a concert but a hymn festival," Koenig said. "We will do a lot of hymn singing."

However, the real star of the celebration will be the beautiful, red oak cased (designed to fit in with the red brick and the wood tone of the pews), 1,390 pipe, 25 stop organ (all, but the trumpet stop, are installed). It is a completely mechanical instrument, as opposed to an electro-pneumatic instrument.

The instrument is played through two keyboards (manual) plus a pedal action.

The stops have a solid state computer action with eight channels of memory.

Unlike other pipe organs, the facade pipes on the Bozeman are all speaking pipes and comprised of the eight-foot theory (the longest pipe in a rank of stops is eight feet high).

According to Butt, every pipe has its own character and they reproduce the sounds of such instruments as the various strings, piccolo, flute, clarinet and others.

She said, "What we now have is a hand crafted instrument from scratch."

Butt noted that about one-half of the pipes that were used in the building of the new organ were salvaged from the previous Vestre Organ that the church used until just after Easter.

She explained that Bozeman was able to rescale, revoice, polish and tune the 1971 pipes.

The new pipes were acquired from a German firm.

Koenig expressed his surprise at learning that "old organs don't get killed, they just get swept up into new organs."

A funny thing happened on the way to the Assembly Square Mall, in Somerville, the other day:

Carol's birthday was Sunday.

On the Saturday before I drove to the Assembly Square Mall to buy Carol a present. I've known Carol for several years; she's become a terrific friend, somebody I've grown to rely on when the chips are down. I wanted to get her a gift she'd derive pleasure from, not something that would sit in a drawer or closet and collect dust. She loves cologne, so I decided to buy her a bottle of Obsession, her favorite fragrance.

When I arrived at the Somerville Mall, I noticed a large crowd milling around the main entrance. I parked my car and sauntered into the middle of the crowd to see what was going on. Moans and complaints filled the air; hand-written signs on the glass doors leading into the mall explained the reason for the mass displeasure. They read: "Mall temporarily closed due to power failure."

I'd driven to Assembly Square because the mall had a Jordan Marsh, which has a department that sells women's colognes. Now where was I going to find a store that carries Obsession cologne by Calvin Klein? I heard a middle-aged blonde woman suggest to her husband that they travel over to the Meadow Glen Mall, which is located a couple of miles away, just on the other side of Wellington Circle. Too, I decided that I would drive to the Meadow Glen Mall, and eventually found a parking space. The lot was particularly crowded; many of the Assembly Square Mall shoppers must have found their way to the Meadow Glen Mall, after discovering the former closed due to the power outage.

As I approached the entrance to the mall, I glimpsed at the names of the stores on the outside of the mall. There were plenty of stores, however, none seemed likely to carry Obsession. I entered the mall, located a CVS. They usually carry colognes. Perhaps I'd luck out, find what I needed there.

No such chance; CVS carries a wide variety of colognes, but not Obsession by Calvin Klein. The sales girl behind the checkout counter told me I'd have to go to Jordan Marsh at the Assembly Square Mall for that. I informed her about the power outage there, and asked if perhaps there might be another store at the Meadow Glen Mall that carried Obsession. She replied that she didn't think so, that I'd have to go to a better department store, if I wanted to buy a bottle of fine cologne for women.

I decided to walk through the mall anyway, just in case. As I walked from store to store, it became apparent that I'd have to travel to some other mall to find Carol's gift. The question was where.

I opted to drive back toward home. There was the Woburn Mall, on Mishawum Road. I couldn't recall a store there that carries fine colognes, but I'd take a chance and stop there anyway. If I couldn't find Obsession there, there was always the Burlington Mall. The thought of abandoning the search for a bottle of Obsession crossed my mind as I drove north on Rte. 93, but by now I was determined to locate a bottle, come hell or high water.

The first store in which I stopped was another CVS. The sales girl at the Meadow Glen Mall CVS had told me her store didn't carry Obsession, but by some remote possibility perhaps

Anxiety disorders program offered

Individuals of all ages can feel anxiety. It can be experienced as an ongoing feeling of nervousness or being "jittery," or as an intense attack of fear and panic. The anxiety may seem to come out of nowhere or may appear to be connected to a particular situation such as driving, being in a crowded place, or facing certain social situations.

The New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH) "Anxiety Disorders Program" offers people suffering from anxiety individual evaluations with licensed psychologists. The psychologists work with individuals to find them the appropriate form of treatment for their particular problem. Individual, couples and group therapy are available.

Groups starting in the fall include one for women who have panic attacks and another for individuals who experience anxiety interacting with other people in either social or work-related settings. Group members will learn specific strategies for coping with anxiety, including relaxation techniques and methods for altering negative, catastrophic thinking. Participants also gain support from others with similar problems.

The program will begin when fully enrolled. The group may be covered by a participant's health insurance plan. For more information, or to register for the "Anxiety Disorders Program," call Dr. Carolyn Keffe, Ed.D., director of behavioral medicine, at (617) 979-7025, Ext. 3158.

response to the Department of Public Works invitation to residents to dispose of brush and tree limbs after Hurricane Bob - and because of budget constraints - the North Reading DPW has had to close - "effective immediately" - the facility to further brush disposal.

Seems that an overwhelming number of residents continued to take advantage of the emergency disposal long after the emergency ended.

STONE ZOO - On Sunday, October 20th from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., plant yourself at Stone Zoo, and then plant daffodil, tulip and crocus bulbs.

Halloween activities are planned for October 27th only, at the zoo.

BURLINGTON - The state Department of Public Works has rejected Burlington's request to restrict left turns from southbound Cambridge St. onto Winn St. between 7 a.m. and 9 a.m. Selectman and member of the Winn St. Advisory Committee George Judge had made the suggestion as part of an effort to reduce traffic flow on Winn St.

"A field investigation indicates that there is a significant number of vehicles making this turn presently," notes District Highway Engineer Laurinda Bedingfield. "These vehicles will require an adequate alternate route ....

"If the town would like to pursue this matter, the town should conduct an in-depth study of the traffic patterns and the effect this regulation change will have on other roadways ... To expedite the approval process, the town may wish to commit themselves to funding the necessary mitigation ...."

SENIOR CENTER - The invitation included a reminder to bring walking shoes sturdy enough to weather damp concrete: Reading seniors were recently invited to tour the town's water treatment plant for a lesson on how their drinking water is processed.

The fall trip encompassed a ride in the van, the option of descending to the lower depths of the building - no elevator, and a complete tour by water treatment plant supervisor Peter Tassi, via a mockup of the filtration system.

October is National Seafood month

In 1955, the United States seafood industry established October National Seafood Month as a way to spread the news about the most plentiful species of fish and shellfish, and to highlight seafood bargains available to the nation's consumers. Today, the annual salute to seafood is still going "swimmingly" as consumers continue to peel shrimp, shuck oysters and crack lobsters to herald the occasion.

U.S. per capita consumption of seafood has risen sharply since the inception of National Seafood Month 36 years ago when consumers ate 10.5 pounds of fish and seafood per person compared to 15.5 pounds in 1990. Some industry forecasters expect seafood's popularity to drastically surge during the 90's increasing per capita consumption to 20 pounds by the year 2000.

Increased consumer awareness of the heart-healthy benefits of eating seafood is one of the reasons for the sharp rise in consumption. There are many other factors as well. According to Lee Weddig, executive vice president of the National Fisheries Institute, "Advanced technology has made seafood more readily available throughout the nation, and with over 250 commercially available species, consumers have many options."

Organ

Dr. Manz will be demonstrating the versatility of the instrument during his playing.

According to Butt, the instrument has to be very versatile. "The principle purpose of the organ is to support the liturgical form followed in the Lutheran Church and to accompany the choir."

"The secondary use is to perform accepted organ literature from Bach to modern day composers," Butt explained.

She noted that this means the instrument must have the ability to play styles of music such as Baroque, Classic Romantic and French Traditional.

Butt explained that the church's 20-person, all-volunteer choir sings the hymns derived from the Lutheran Book of Worship of 1976.

"They are eclectic in nature. The hymn writers and the tunes are from all over the world," Butt said.

She noted that the tunes were written in the time span from the early 1500's, when Martin Luther first split from the Roman Catholic Church, until today. In addition to these standard Lutheran chorales, the choir also performs more contemporary harmonies.

Referring to herself, Butt said,

"The choir director likes versatility and diversity."

She added, "The organ needs to be able to support the different types of music and be able to play on special church days, which the old organ was not."

Butt and Koenig explained how the church came about spending about one-half on the new instrument as was originally spent on the present church building about 20-years ago.

According to Butt, the old Vestre Organ had served the church well for a number of years. However, she added that because it was a Norwegian make, and the parts were not standard with American parts, it was difficult to maintain.

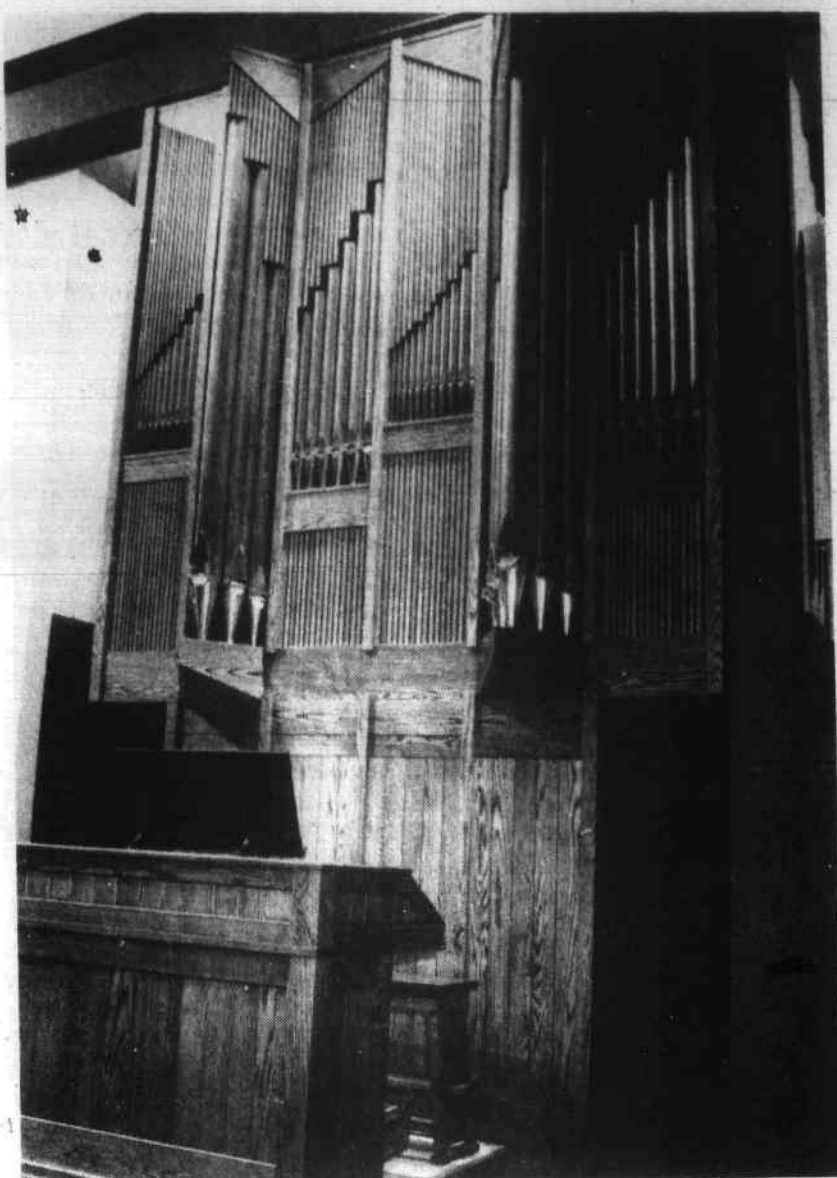

The Vestre eventually deteriorated to a point where it was difficult to attract decent musicians to play it.

The move to replace the Vestre started in 1985. However, a structural problem with the roof caused the project to be put off.

In 1986, the congregation again decided that a new organ was on the agenda. At this time, 17 organ builders were invited to submit proposals.

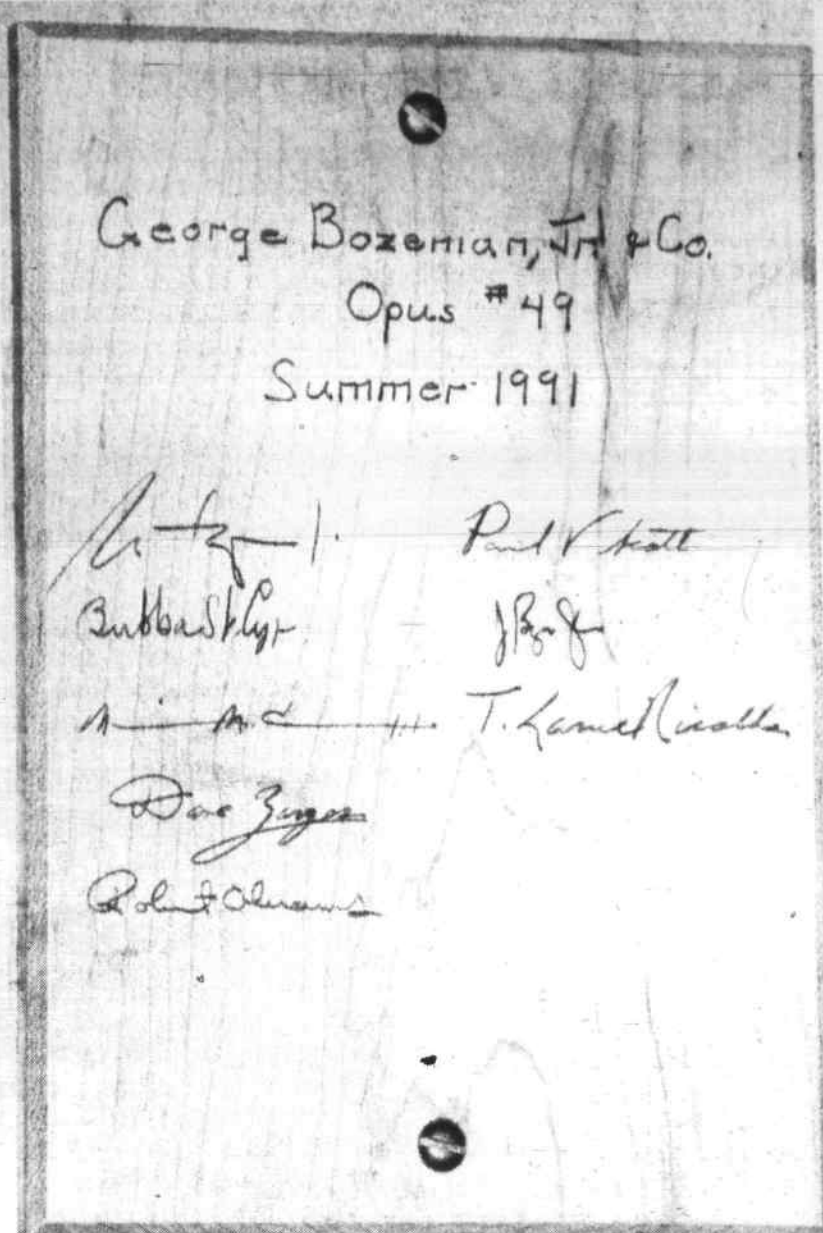

Butt noted that the tracker type organ was not a priority. However, it turned out that two of the three finalists were tracker builders.

Koenig noted that the new

Bozeman is the biggest project that the church had committed to since the construction of the new building.

"This is a huge investment for such a small congregation (about 250 families, many second and third generation from the original Swedish immigrants). Especially in a time of recession, when a lot of people are demoralized."

"For the congregation to commit and do so well speaks well for their faith and their love of music in the Lutheran Church," Koenig added.

Another factor on the timing of the dedication is that it is so close to the church's Centennial Anniversary, which will be in 1993.

The original church was formed on Montvale Avenue, and moved to the new location on Forest Park Road in 1970.

According to Koenig, "This is kind of a Centennial gift and the kick-off of the Centennial Celebration."

Koenig also offered special thanks to the Sterling Bank, which stuck with the church after the former Woburn Five Cent Bank could no longer honor the mortgage commitment.

He noted that the project was about 85 percent along at the time and would have been in a great deal of trouble had Sterling not chosen to continue the line of credit on the project.

The organ is not just new to the church but it also has the distinction of being the first new one built in this area in about two years.

This distinction earned it a featured article in New England Organist, a publication that serves the Northeast.

"There is a whole organ mafia out there that goes around and appreciates each other's work," Koenig said.

Butt noted that many of these people are expected to come to the dedication. She also said that Bozeman and his crew would be in attendance.

Butt noted that a lot of churches are attempting to save money and go the route of electric organs. However, she expressed her opinion that those organs will have to be replaced in 10 years.

Noting the success and longevity of the Hook organs in the area, Butt expressed an indication that the Bozeman would last a long time.

She explained that Bozeman is the former organist and choir director for Woburn's First Congregational Church and is helping to restore their instrument.

Butt added that the unique feature of a pipe organ that has been built, as opposed to a store bought organ, is that it meets the specifications and needs and musical style of the purchaser and the room it will be built in.

As she demonstrated the already fine tonal quality of the instrument, Butt commented, "As with a good glass of wine it ages and becomes more settled. It wouldn't sound the same in another room. This will become an integral part of this room."

Over the years many people will have a chance to test that theory. Koenig said, "We would like to give concerts for the community. We would like to add to the cultural availability of the city."

Three concerts have already been planned for the coming spring with the first to be held in January.

Koenig noted that many people helped in acquiring the instrument for the church and those people will be duly thanked at the celebration.

"Paradise" "Shattered"

by Rochelle Flynn

"Paradise" Starring Melanie Griffith, Don Johnson, Elijah Wood, Thora Birch. Directed and written by Mary Agnes Donoghue. Produced by Scott Kroopf, Patrick Palmer. Based on the movie "Le Grand Chemin."

American filmmakers very rarely remake a French film with any degree of success. Writer/director Mary Agnes Donoghue managed not only to recreate the warm sentiment of 1988's "Le Grand Chemin," but she gave it a contemporary feeling that only added to its emotional depth.

Melanie Griffith and Don Johnson play Ben and Lily Reed, a small town couple who take in her best friend's son while his very pregnant mother prepares for her second baby. The boy, Willard, has been told his father is away on yet another tour at sea, yet he suspects not is all copacetic between his parents. The child, played by Elijah Wood, is a bright boy attending a private school on scholarship.

Though only eight years old, he picks up quite a lot of what is going on around him.

Once he arrives at the country home of Ben and Lily, he immediately tunes into the fact that this is one unhappy couple. These two are going through the motions of a marriage, though they have just barely suppressed the pain of the accidental death of their son a few years earlier.

Surprisingly, with all this serious subject matter, the film is remarkably upbeat. This is a movie about healing, and about growing up. It is handled with amazing deftness by first-time director Mary Agnes Donoghue, who understands heartache, but never capitalizes on it. Forgiveness, of yourself and others, is the key to this movie, yet the audience never feels as if it's being preached at. Instead, Donoghue slowly unravels this lesson as we warm up to her characters.

Griffith and Johnson turn in impeccable performances. Johnson had the tougher job here, as he must to express tenderness without dropping his gruff exterior. His feature film performances have been increasingly impressive and this one should help erase the stigma of "Miami Vice" once and for all.

However, our focus is always on the children in the film. Wood gives a sweet, shyly uncertain performance that bestows his Willard with a credibility we rarely see in screen children. And Thora Birch, Willard's country mouse friend, is a comic delight as the chatty, fearless little girl who frightens away most of her contemporaries.

"Paradise" is a touching film that is well crafted, well acted, and brimming with emotion. More importantly, its hopeful message is far more believable than the fairy tales Hollywood so often passes off as reality-based stories.

"Shattered" Starring Tom Berenger, Gretta Scacchi, Bob Hoskins. Written and directed by Wolfgang Petersen. Produced by Petersen, John Davis, David Korda. Rated R.

Structured to leave you perched on the edge of your seat, there is no denying that "Shattered" packs a powerful punch. Unfortunately, it is also too slick to swallow.

You can tell you're in for one hell of a ride right from the start. Writer/director Wolfgang Petersen constructs a terrifying car accident that is shiveringly realistic, thanks in great part to his masterful use of sound. As the car plunges off a cliff, we not only see the trapped passengers, but we can hear their groans. It's a very effective way to capture our attention.

As the plot unfolds, we learn the events leading up to that gruesome accident. The inhabitants are handsome, powerful architect Dan Merrick (Tom Berenger) and his devoted wife Judith (Gretta Scacchi). She, interestingly enough, walks away from the acci-

Learn how to relax and live

Winchester Hospital is offering "Healthy Lifestyles," a program designed for people who recognize that stress is having a negative effect on their lifestyle.

Cynthia Medich, M.S., R.N., will lead the program, where participants will learn more about stress overload and how to become aware of mind/body interaction and the physical, emotional and behavioral aspects of stresses.

Through a combination of education, cognitive/behavioral techniques, self-awareness strategies and group discussion, participants will be able to identify stress-provoking situations and develop more effective coping skills. Exercise and nutrition are also discussed as important components of good health.

Healthy Lifestyles is offered from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in four sessions on October 23rd, 30th, November 6th and 13th at the Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center at 21 Warren Ave. in Woburn. For price information, call Winchester Hospital at (617) 756-2220.

Monthly concert at Linden Tree October 26

On Saturday, October 26th, at 8 p.m. the Linden Tree Coffeehouse will be open for its monthly folk concert series in the social hall of the Unitarian-Universalist Church on Main Street in Wakefield.

Acoustical blues guitarist, singer and songwriter Sherli Sherwood is a returning performer to the Linden Tree. Her song lyrics are universal and personal in the blues tradition. Sherwood has written over 80 songs and has a new cassette. Her expansive, powerful, and sensuous voice combines with a playful, often humorous stage presence to delight audiences.

Fool's Errand is an acoustic band formed in the spring of 1990 by members of the Folk Song Society of Greater Boston, performing the finest in contemporary and traditional songs for America and the British Isles. Members of the band have been performing solo and in groups for nearly 20 years on the folk music circuit. The talented group play a variety of instruments such as guitar, banjo, concertina, mandolin, bousouki and harmonica.

The exciting evening will begin with an Open Mike set at 8 p.m. Admission is just $5.50.

Sherli Sherwood

Goodies and hot coffee and teas will be perfect for a fall evening out.

calendar of monthly concerts are available. For information call (617) 246-2836 or (617) 245-6670.

dent without a scratch while he ends up looking like a piece of charred hamburger. After physical therapy and plastic surgery, Merrick reclaims his life and his good looks. The only thing he doesn't regain is his complete memory. All personal recollections are erased from his mind. Dan has to rely on Judith to fill in his past. But there is something creepy about the beautiful Judith. After all, no one can possibly be as loving and sincere as she claims.

As Dan begins to wonder why Judith isn't injured in the accident, he starts to poke around into his past, checking up on some of the things his wife did not bother to tell him. As he learns more about his life, Merrick discovers he really doesn't much like who he was. He also feels that something is very wrong about the life he is leading.

We have no problem accepting the fact that there is something sinister brewing beneath his seemingly idealistic existence. It also doesn't take long to realize Petersen constructed a melodrama set in an episode of Robin Leech's "Lifestyle of the Rich and Famous." The settings, the clothes, the cars - all gorgeous. But there are no sparks between Scacchi and Berenger. There is nothing real happening on screen until Bob Hoskins shows up as an asthmatic, animal-loving private detective. His sloppy, cynical P.I. has more personality and integrity than anyone else in the film.

While you may not believe all this Grande Guginol, Petersen deserves credit for knowing how to punch our buttons. The ending is outlandish, but it is creative and shocking. He makes up for deficient characterization with tense atmosphere. Just don't analyze what you're seeing, because there's no substance here, just smoke and mirrors.

Manage unemployment stress

A successful job search doesn't just happen...it must be managed. And dealing with the inevitable stress associated with unemployment must also be managed, Dr. Laurence J. Stybel, co-founder and president of Stybel, Peabody & Associates, Inc./The Lincolnshire Group, a Boston-based outplacement consulting firm, said.

Unemployment is a major stress. In 1973, a psychologist looked at social stresses and correlated their presence with physical illness. Of 43 social stresses evaluated, job loss was ranked number eight.

High and sustained levels of stress can not only create physical problems; these levels of stress can also decrease your effectiveness in the job search -- thus putting you in a vicious circle: lack of employment -- stress -- poor job search performance -- lack of employment -- stress -- poor job search performance, etc.

The stress management techniques that work best will be an individual matter. Dr. Stybel, who is also a licensed psychologist in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, suggests the following:

•Exercise -- The benefits of moderate regular exercise, even just 20 minutes, have proved to decrease anxiety, lower blood pressure and reduce heart attack risk. Strive for variety in your exercise menu. Examples of low cost exercises include brisk walking, calisthenics and jogging. Sometimes exercises which involve "bashing" objects are healthy ways of dealing with feelings of hostility toward people and situations. Examples of "bashing" exercises include tennis, bowling, bat practice, using a punching bag and racket ball.

•Music -- Whether music can actually soothe the savage beasts is open to debate. It probably does influence mood. Focusing on music also channels attention away from sources of information which could unnecessarily distract.

•Sleeping -- Tension tends to disrupt the sleep cycle. It is not uncommon to wake up early in the morning and be unable to go back to bed. Try to stick to a regular schedule, and get consistent sleep. Mid-afternoon naps may be attractive for those working out of their homes. But the side effect may be a disruption of the regular sleep cycle. Eventually, you may find yourself not able to keep normal "business" hours.

•Daydreaming -- Along with time to sleep, give yourself a generous opportunity to daydream. Some people do this quite naturally while knitting or walking. Some people have hobbies which allow them to daydream while doing the hobby. Don't short change your opportunity to charge your mental and emotional batteries. Watching television and going to movies is not the same as giving yourself time to daydream.

•Family Systems -- Keep in mind that your level of stress will impact on other members of the family. Don't be surprised to see behavioral changes in others at home...even infants. Those changes are both natural and a sign that some action should be taken. The first action step should focus on increasing the communications between the family partners.

•Tradeoff Analysis -- Some of the techniques discussed may take time. And you may already have so many responsibilities, it is difficult to imagine how you can add more issues onto an already overloaded system.

Stress management, like most management activities, involves tradeoff analysis. Given limited financial resources and limits on time, some roles may have to be short changed or sub-optimized for a time in order to optimize more important roles.

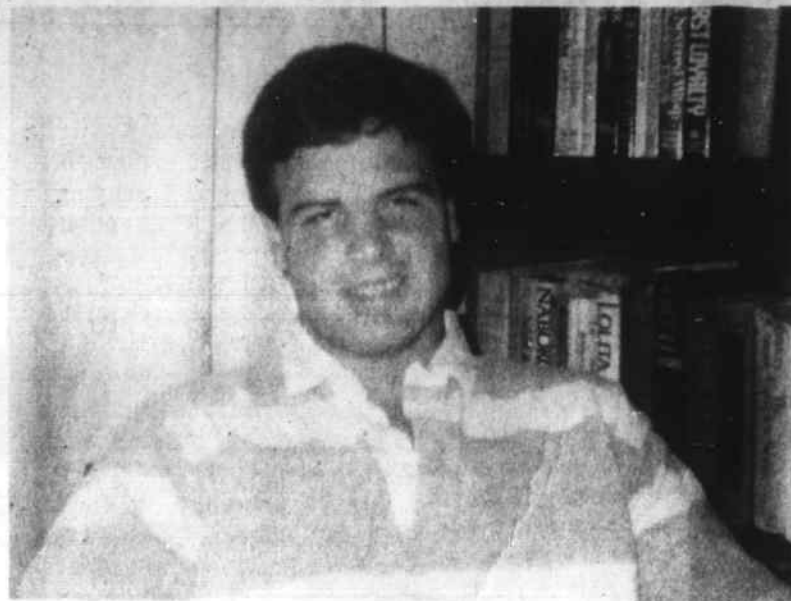

The Lincolnshire Group, Inc. is a network of select outplacement firms with offices throughout the United States that provides comprehensive, professional outplacement and human resource planning services to client companies that require national, regional or local coverage. Formed in 1989, the group is owned entirely and equally by its member firms whose principals represent over 100 years of experience in the outplacement field.

Fall family overnight at Children's Museum

One of the most popular Fall Family Overnight projects is plaster mask-making. Children lie on the floor while their adult partners carefully lay the gauze over them for the mask. The next morning, everyone decorates the masks using feathers, glitter, paint and recycle materials. An important part of the process is that adults and children are working on an equal level to complete a specific project. Both participants are needed to make the creation. Sawin says, "The adults and children are proud of what they have made together. Both of them know how much work went into the project and what a good time they had doing it!"

A full program of activities and performances plus a snack time is planned. Following is a schedule for exact times:

Friday: 3:30 to 6 p.m. - Stow your gear and sign up for activities. Then choose the exhibit area where you will sleep.

6 p.m. - Eat dinner at a nearby restaurant.

7 p.m. - Arts and crafts activities featuring plaster mask-making and much more!

9 p.m. - Overnights-only time in the Museum. Explore the Museum and spend as much time as you like working on the computers, discoing on the dance floor and playing your favorite games.

11 p.m. - Lights out. Roll out your sleeping bags in your favorite exhibit space for a unique evening slumber.

Saturday: 7-10 a.m. - Rise and shine. Have breakfast at McDonalds and get ready for more activities and programs until 10 a.m.

10 a.m.-5 p.m. - Stay all day in the Museum if you wish. Gear must be claimed by 11 a.m.

Children must be at least 6 years old and accompanied by an adult. Pre-registrations and prepayment are required. Fee is $21 per person for Children's Museum members and $23 per person for non-members. Overnight fee includes Museum admission, parking, all activities and programs plus an evening snack. Dinner is "on your own" and breakfast can be purchased at McDonalds.

With today's technology of television, videotapes and computer games, many families tend to spend more time interacting with machines and less time interacting with each other. Also, when both parents are working or a single parent is running the household, it's hard to find time to sit down with kids to work on an art project, play a game or just simply talk to each other.

The Fall Family Overnight on Friday, October 25 at The Children's Museum is the perfect opportunity for parents to spend some quality time with their kids in a quality place for families.

Family Overnights are part of the Museum Overnights program now in its sixth year. Almost every Friday night, troops of Cub Scouts or Girl Scouts, or other youth groups set up camp in The Children's Museum and spend the evening working on projects related to badge requirements.

The twice yearly Family Overnights, however, take on a different tone. The projects for this event are designed to encourage a high level of parent-child interaction.

At Boston Public Library

Postage "Errors and Oddities"

An "Exhibition of Design Errors and Other Stamp Curiosities" from the Cardinal Spellman Philatelic Museum's Stover Collection will be on display in the main lobby of the Boston Public Library in Copley Square through October 30.

The exhibition is taken from the two-volume collection which was donated to the museum in 1974 by Donald H. Stover, who found it both fun and challenging to collect stamps with design errors and historical misrepresentations.

Stover checked thousands of stamps and found a lot of muddled scholarship, overzealous art and rickshaws propaganda. For example, he found that many American stamps have commemorated non-existent "anniversaries" including the poultry industry, baseball, and even the Battle of Bunker Hill (twice). He also found Dwight Eisenhower in a woman's suitcoat, little penguins wearing sombreros, and airplanes that never flew.

Even Norman Rockwell was found at fault in his representation of Mark Twain's tale of Tom

Sawyer which did not accurately follow the text calling for "long-handled brush" and a "fennine feet high."

The Stover Collection, which is one of the most popular among visitors to the Spellman Museum in Weston, is considered noteworthy among philatelists for the precision of its scholarship and variety of countries and subjects. The exhibit is free and open to the public from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Treatment for burns varies with each individual case

The skin is our body's first defense against infection. Burns, even small ones, can damage the skin and result in infection and blood poisoning if not treated correctly.

According to Glenn Glesmann, M.D., chairman of the Department of Emergency Medicine at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, it is critically important to keep a burn clean and covered. "Generally, first aid for burns involves keeping the patient comfortable, easing the pain and preventing any further contamination of the wound. Most burns also should be inspected by a physician for several days following an injury," notes Dr. Glesmann.

Specific first aid treatment depends on the cause of the burn and the skin layer affected. Most burns result from heat (flames, steam, boiling water, hot metal and grease), electricity (lightning or hot wires) or chemicals.

"First degree" burns are superficial and affect only the top layer of skin. A mild sunburn would be included in this category. Apply a cold compress or immerse the burned area in cool water. Do not put oil, grease or butter on any degree of burn.

"Second degrees" burns are more serious. They result in a red or mottled appearance and are very painful. Blisters, broken skin and swelling may result. "Second degree burns should be immersed in cool water or treated with cold, wet compresses made from a clean wash cloth or towel," says Dr. Glesmann. "Do not break the blisters. Elevate burned arms or legs to decrease the pain and reduce swelling. Be sure to immediately flush chemical burns with water. Gently blot dry the burned area and cover with a clean cloth."

"Third degree" burns damage all the layers of the skin and sometimes the fatty tissue under the skin. The burn surface is usually pale white, dry, charred and leathery. The center of the burn may be painless because the nerve has been destroyed. Never remove clothing that may be adhered to the burn since the skin may be torn away with the clothing and the burn exposed to infection. Do not immerse in cold water. Apply moist, cool (not cold) compresses and cover the burn with a sterile dressing or clean cloth.

Other factors can influence burn's severity, such as the amount of the body surface that is burned. Second degree burns covering more than 30% of the body surface, or third degree burns covering more than 10% of the body, are considered critical and require hospitalization. In these cases when the burns cover a large portion of the body, cold compresses should not be applied. Instead cover the burns with dry linens to retain the patient's body heat.

Another important factor to consider when treating burns is the area of the body burned. Burns on vital parts of the body such as the face, feet, hands and genitals, are potentially more serious than burns on the torso.

"Most burns in these areas should be treated in an emergency room. Anyone with a third degree burn, no matter how small or in what area of the body, should visit the hospital immediately," warns Dr. Glesmann. "Of course, if you are ever unsure about the severity of a burn, it is always wise to seek medical attention."

LaLeche meeting

Successful breastfeeding often begins with a happy childbirth experience. Many options are open to parents today in the Family Centered Maternity Care programs in hospitals. How will the arrival of your new baby affect your relationship as a couple or as a family? These topics will be explored next Monday, October 21, when the Burlington Group of La Leche League of Massachusetts will meet to discuss "Baby Arrives: The Family and the Breastfed Baby," at 8 p.m. at the home of Donna Bigony, 96 R Locust St., Burlington.
